Project Title	Web Pages Needed for American President Website!
Project Summary	Presidential website needs exciting and engaging content! Create web interactives for James A. Garfield National Historic Site's web page, including WebRanger activities, teacher resources and information for the general public.
Country	United States

Project Description

Creative students are needed to write pages for James A. Garfield National Historic Site website (www.nps.gov/jaga). Many teachers and students access our site for information on the president, his family, and the times he lived in, for use in school projects and lesson plans.

Additionally, materials for the National Park Service's WebRanger program, an online version of the Garfield site's Junior Ranger program, and other intepretive materials need to be developed.

Interns will use interpretive materials provided by the Garfield site to create these pages. Interns will learn the fundamentals of National Park Service interpretation, and use these principals to develop content.

Each eIntern will be expected to submit one new web page each month for the duration of the project.
